

Journey from malnutrition to well-nutrition

Raising standards of nutritional care for elderly people in nursing homes and hospitals

DSM

BRIGHT SCIENCE. BRIGHTER LIVING.

ESPEN 2021 Satellite Symposium Sunday, 12 September | 17:00-18:00h CET

Malnutrition is frequent in older people and has a significant negative effect on their health, independence, and quality of life. This symposium highlights the importance of optimal nutritional care for older people in nursing homes and hospitals. Three expert presentations link recently published clinical data on acute nutrition in older inpatients, with latest recommendations for longer-term care, and practical approaches to achieve optimal nutritional management in older people.

We will be joined by:

Araksya Topchyan
Global Marketing Manager Pharma and Medical Nutrition,
DSM (host)

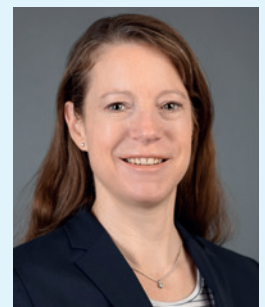

Prof. Philip Schütz
Kantonsspital Aarau,
Switzerland
The interplay between malnourishment, age-related frailty and
the nutritional support:
where are we in 2021?

Marcel J.G. Smets
European Aging
Network
New guidelines: best practice promoting well-nutrition in elderly care

Markus Biedermann
FORUM99
Towards a 5 star dietary culture in long-term care homes

Dr. Barbara Troesch
Global Senior
Scientific Affairs
Manager Pharma and
Medical Nutrition, DSM
Joining the panel discussion

For more information about DSM's Medical Nutrition solutions, visit www.dsm-medicalnutrition.com.